Hazardous Weather

Gusty south winds will shift to the west and then the northwest today as a cold front pushes across the area. Wind speeds of 15 to 20 mph can be expected with a few higher gusts. Particularly dry and breezy conditions will create elevated fire danger for areas generally west of the Interstate 35 corridor. Otherwise, a nice day is in store with high temperatures in the 60s (a few 70 degree readings are possible over the southwestern counties). Winds will fall below 10 MPH after sunset this evening.
